

Next Move Up to President as Coal Negotiations Collapse

Pickets Stymie Effort of Group To Enter Mine

Roosevelt Will Get Full Report From Parley Members Today.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
CIO United Mine Workers' pickets late yesterday turned back employees of a Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company captive coal mine near Pittsburgh a short time after union and management conferees on the captive mine dispute broke off negotiations in Washington, still deadlocked on the union shop issue.

The men turned back were about 50 coke oven workers of the company's Buckeye mine in Greene county, Pa.—close to Fayette county, world's greatest coke-producing district.

In breaking off negotiations with steel company representatives, John L. Lewis, UMW president, stood firm on his order for a work stoppage by 53,000 miners, checking the next action up to President Roosevelt—and maybe congress.

Although the Buckeye mine workers were turned back from their jobs, a shift of 75 to 100 men of the Colonial and Phillips mines of the H. C. Frick Coke Company reported for work on their shifts at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon—apparently disregarding the strike order.

New Crisis Reached.
With these developments, it was apparent that government-labor relations in the light of the defense program had reached a crisis, for Mr. Roosevelt had declared only Friday that production from the coal mines—owned by steel companies busy with armament orders—must continue without delay.

Meanwhile, Alabama's 8,000 captive miners were idle yesterday and union sources said the walkout would remain in effect "until we get instructions from our national executives to resume work."

Usually reliable sources said several units of the 27th division, stationed 65 miles away at Fort McClellan, Ala., were ready to move on a few minutes notice in case they are ordered to the coal fields.

(Possibility that the captive coal strike might spread to a general walkout of all CIO miners from coal pits throughout the nation was seen when Lewis ordered the UMW policy committee to meet at 9:30 a. m. today, International News Service reported. The committee is composed of 200 representatives of various CIO union districts. There have been reports that they would instruct their workers to walk out in sympathy.)

CIO Backs UMW.
In Detroit yesterday, the executive board of the CIO pledged its unqualified support for the efforts by the UMW to gain a union shop.

When yesterday's final and fruitless conference broke up, spokesmen for the steel industry declared flatly that they were "undivided in our opposition to a closed shop or a union shop."

Lewis, president of the UMW, asserted just as flatly that since the commercial mines operate under a union shop, which requires all workers to belong to the union, the UMW "could not extend special favors to the steel companies."

The strike truce granted by Lewis for last-ditch negotiations expired Saturday midnight and first full effects of the stoppage are expected to be apparent this morning when the miners normally would return to work after the Sabbath day of rest.

President Roosevelt will get a report today from both sides on the negotiations.

The Chief Executive suggested

Axis Ship Flying U. S. Flag Seized by American Cruiser; Scuttling Attempt Is Blocked

Tokyo Warns Its 'Patience' Is Nearing End

Premier Bluntly States Terms Demanded To Prevent War.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
Japan pushed the Pacific crisis toward the point of peace or war today. Tokyo warned the United States that her patience was nearing an end and laid down terms for keeping the war out of the Pacific.

They were that the economic blockade must be lifted; that the "military encirclement" of Japan through agreements of America, Britain, China and the Netherlands, be abolished; that normal trade relations be restored; and that others keep their hands off Japan's settlement of the conflict with China.

"Little Less Than War."
These points were pronounced by Premier Hideki Tojo, who declared to the diet that the United States-British economic freezing measures were only a "little less hostile than carrying on armed warfare."

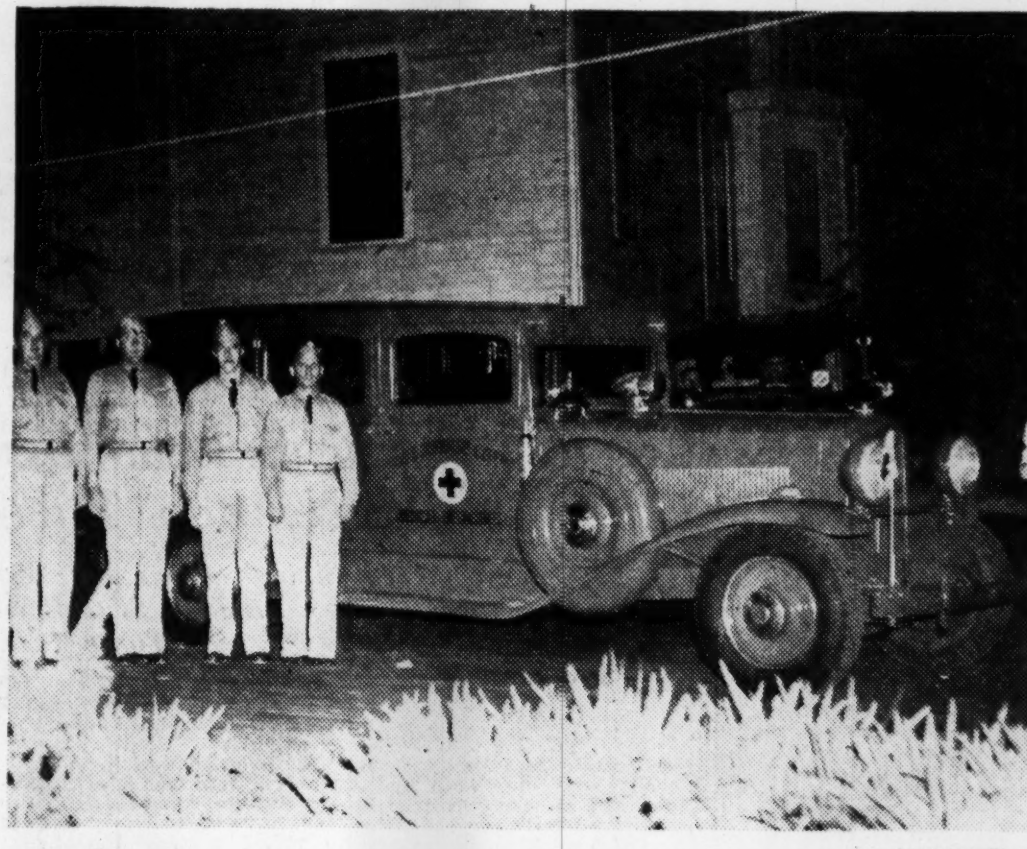

Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo then told the diet that the time for negotiations with the United States was drawing toward a close and warned: "There is naturally a limit to our conciliatory attitude." Experienced Far Eastern observers saw no indication of a willingness to conciliate in the Japanese statements. They said the Japanese, on the contrary, apparently had failed to understand the first fundamentals of the American position, and were getting desperate because of economic strangulation.

Kurusu To See Hull.
Washington was silent. Saburu Kurusu, special envoy sent by the Japanese government on a last chance assignment to get peace in the economic warfare choking Japan's business life, sees Secretary Hull today.

Togo warned that Japan would face "with firm and resolute attitude" any resulting situation which might "menace the very existence of our empire or compromise the prestige of Japan as a great power."

The address, sent around the world by the Domei agency, is the means the Japanese government customarily adopts to state its position for the record.

It had nothing but praise for the Axis, nothing but harsh words for the anti-Axis powers. In speeches yesterday the premier and Navy Minister Shigetaro Shimada declared Japan's determination to conclude the nation's "greater East Asia" program—come what may.

FLOYD LEADS THE NATION—In case of war, the chances are remote that Floyd county would suffer attacks such as might be launched against her larger neighbors, Atlanta, for instance. Yet that county has come through with an important "first." Here is a group of members of the Floyd county battalion of the state defense corps lined up alongside their ambulance—the first in the nation to be owned and operated by a state defense unit, according to Colonel Lindley W. Camp.

Sparkling Show of Outstanding Atlanta Art on Sale Downtown

Topflight Workers Help Stimulate Interest by Responding to Appeal To Cut Prices in Roosevelt-Backed National Art Week Program.

By EUGENIA BRIDGES HARTY.
Leading artists of Greater Atlanta are represented in an outstanding exhibit at 60 Peachtree street, which represents this city in the nation-wide chain of similar shows to inaugurate this week as National Art Week, according to President Roosevelt's proclamation. Nine other Georgia cities are participating.

The special week was designated for the first time last year by the President; its purpose, to stimulate the sales of work by local artists. This year, Thomas J. Watson, national chairman of the celebration, appointed a chairman for each state, who in turn appointed city chairmen. Lamar Dodd, head of the art department at the University of Georgia, is Georgia's chairman, with Julian Harris, last year's chairman, acting as state advisor. Mrs. Lloyd Hatcher is chairman for Greater Atlanta.

The show opens this morning and may be viewed without charge daily from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. All work on display is for sale, and the artists, whose work was submitted to a jury of selection, were urged to lower their prices to the limit in order to further the purpose of National Art Week. In Athens, Augusta, Savannah and Valdosta, the sales exhibits are taking the form of auctions, while in Macon, Columbus, Rome, and LaGrange, the shows are similar to the Greater Atlanta exhibit.

Atlanta's art connoisseurs will find many tempting bargains among the 180 items in the local sales show. Though water colors appear to be the feature of the exhibition this year, with more and better ones than last year, there also are many fine oils, pastels, lithographs, woodcuts, and some sculpture and handicrafts, as well.

Of unusual interest are Athon Menaboni's birds, Majorie Bush-Brown's oils, Leroy Jackson's water colors, Wendell Jackson's oils, Ben Shute's water colors and pastels, Mrs. Herbert Oliver's oils, Robert Rogers' water colors, Hale Woodruff's wood cuts and a series of lithographs of Georgia scenes by James Routh.

Behind them on both sides moved a motley array of men in everything from deer stalking outfits to tweed suits, the small army of newspaper correspondents who

Capture Made In Equatorial Atlantic Waters

Salvage Crew Bringing Vessel to Jurisdiction of Courts.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—An American cruiser has captured an Axis merchantman which sought to bluff its way through the British blockade with a false flaunting of the Stars and Stripes, the Navy Department announced tonight.

The ship, which was cruising in the Atlantic near the equator, was taken in custody November 6 when the cruiser's commander became suspicious of her despite American flags blazoned on her sides and deck and an American name painted on her pilot house and stern.

No Fight Indicated.
The capture was effected apparently without a fight—in fact the crew tried to blow up the ship when the cruiser signalled her to heave to and lowered a boat to investigate her.

Then her sailors ran up signal flags: "Send boats for passengers, I am sinking." A carefully worded naval announcement gave only meager details of the incident—the first in which the Navy has reported taking the initiative against an Axis ship on the high seas since the start of the Atlantic patrol—and withheld the name of the cruiser and the identity of the captive.

One point of interest which was not clarified in the initial announcement was whether the Axis ship was an armed raider or a legitimate cargo vessel, possibly playing between South America and Europe.

Admiralty Proceedings Seen.
If the Navy's reference to her "passengers" was made advisedly, it apparently would indicate that the ship was in the latter category.

The vessel, and presumably its crew, is being brought to a port "within the jurisdiction of a United States court," the Navy said. There the ship will be turned over to the custody of a United States marshal and admiralty proceedings probably will be started looking to its forfeiture. Officials who will have charge of this phase of these proceedings were unable to detail what laws might apply to the case pending research.

The ship had been "severely damaged by her own crew," the Navy said, adding that repairs will be necessary to make her seaworthy again.

Flag's Use Unlawful.
The use of the American flag in this manner is unlawful under the United States neutrality act.

The Navy's announcement follows: "The Navy Department announced tonight that a United States cruiser at dawn, November 6, captured an Axis merchantman."

China Offers Trained Soldiers For Defense of Russia, Burma

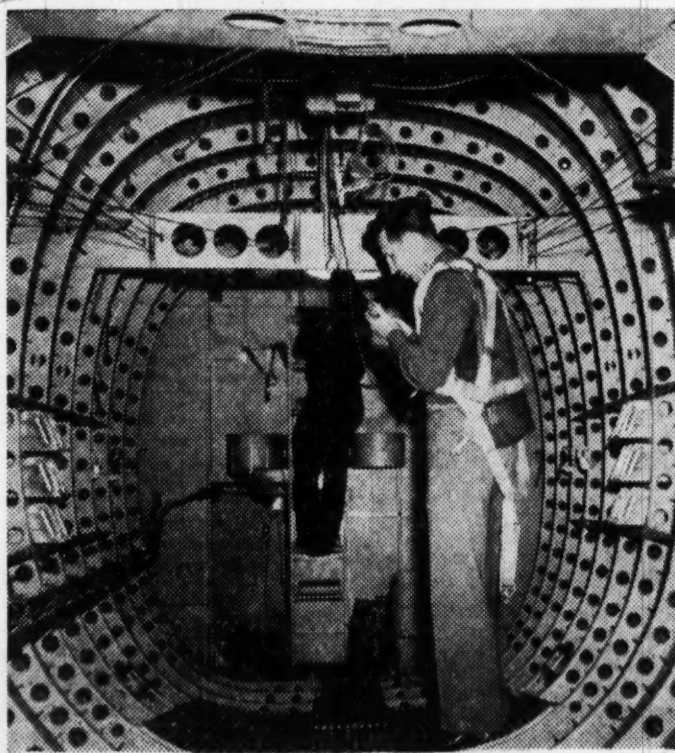

LONDON, Nov. 16.—(P)—China stands ready to provide trained troops by the tens of thousands, if requested, for the defense of British Burma or of Russia if the Japanese attack, the Chinese ambassador to London, Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, declared today.

Koo said in an interview that he had no first-hand information on a report that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had offered a million soldiers to the Soviet Union contingent upon a Japanese attack. But he indicated that this was not improbable.

China has an army of five million with twelve million or more in reserve, he said, and China will not forget her debt to Russia. The envoy pictured China as the Far East "reservoir of manpower for the democracies."

Koo, in times past minister of finance, foreign minister and acting premier of the Chinese Republic, said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has a vast army concentrated on the southern frontier of Yunnan province, southwest China, to guard against any Japanese thrust at Burma from French Indo-China.

If asked, Koo said, these troops

'Shirt-Sleeve' Weather Expected To Continue

More warm, sunny weather, like yesterday's, is in store for Atlanta and vicinity today, the weatherman said yesterday.

A high of 73 was recorded yesterday while the maximum today is expected to reach 75. Yesterday's shirt-sleeve temperature is among the highest for November.

The weatherman added there was nothing on his map to indicate cold would return soon. Yesterday's minimum was 45 and today's is expected to be 42.

Knife-Wielding Negro Tangles With Bear Near Panthersville

Residents, in the vicinity of Panthersville, augmented by DeKalb county police, last night were staging a bear hunt in the wild and woolly hills off Candler road.

The hunt was launched after Skeet Gibson, a Negro, living on Oak Grove road, in southeast DeKalb county had called police and exclaimed: "Thar's a bar in them hills."

Gibson, with a heavy wool jacket torn into shreds, and unmistakable claw marks in the flesh of his right shoulder, told police he was walking on Candler road when he saw something slowly approaching in the darkness.

At first, Gibson said, he thought it was a man, but as it came closer, he realized it was not a human.

'Napoleon Weather' Shrouds Operations On Soviet Front

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Snow, such as has helped bind the Germans to fixed positions on most other parts of the 2,000-mile Russian front, has caught up with them also in the Crimea, where they had been making their most strenuous drive, authoritative British military quarters said last night.

At the same time, the Moscow radio proclaimed that "Napoleon weather" had arrived and reported for the first time that German soldiers had been frozen to death, their tanks imprisoned in ice and snow. The same relentless winter that stalked Napoleon to defeat now preys on the new invaders, Moscow said.

Russia Prepared. British press dispatches from Moscow said that Russia was well prepared for the winter fighting, having trained hundreds of thousands of ski troops.

German reports said bullets whistled through falling snowflakes, aviators flew blindly through blizzards, and gunners blazed away at tanks charging through the snowy muck on a wide region of the eastern front. Nearly all German accounts emphasized the severe weather and stalled Russian counterthrusts, but reported few territorial gains for the Germans.

One German aviator said snow in the air so reduced visibility that he was obliged to approach his targets flying blind, and that only through reconnaissance in hours of good visibility made it possible to reach his objectives at all.

Even Finns Stopped. Many of those objectives were said to be Soviet tanks buried in the frozen earth with only their firing towers protruding to serve as emergency casemates.

British press dispatches from Stockholm said the temperature in the Crimea had suddenly dropped to five degrees Fahrenheit above zero, and that even the offensive of the Finns, famous for their winter ski fighters, had been stopped by the weather in Karelia where, Russian reports said, Germans and Finns lost 5,000 men in a 10-day battle.

The British quarters said they had received the first "definite and official report" of heavy snow in the usually balmy Crimean peninsula, parts of which are a favorite winter resort, and said the turn in the weather almost certainly would be a "definite advantage to the defense of Sevastopol," the Red fleet's Black Sea base.

A Vichy news agency report, however, quoted the German radio as saying German troops had penetrated into Kerch, one of their main Crimean objectives. The agency report, relayed by Reuters, quoted the radio as saying fighting was in progress in streets of the city.

Martin Finds General Drum in Carolina Wilds

Maneuvers Plane Down in Georgia

Those who followed the Blue Army were well equipped to cover a thing as elusive as a mock war. They got their preliminary training 12 hours before the battle started this morning—when they set out from press headquarters trying to find the hidden command post of Lieutenant General Hugh A. Drum, commander of the First Army, the attacking force. To find Lieutenant General Hugh A. Drum you go through a ritual like you are joining some sort of secret order. First you ride for maybe 20 miles or so down a main highway at just about first dark in the evening. There are plenty of civilian cars on the highway driving with lights full on, but you ride blackout. Then you turn off the main highway and drive about 10 miles down a dirt road. There aren't any civilian cars on this road and you still drive in full blackout, guided only by the tiny taillight of the car in front of you. The dirt road gives out and you strike out through the woods still in pitch blackness, and if you listen carefully you can hear the car in front and the car in back bumping into trees and bouncing back and starting up again. Your car hits one finally and it throws you up against the steel top of the car, and you are very thankful you wore your tire hat which the Army lent you, even if it does make you feel like a colored mammy carrying a scuttle of coal on her head. Finally the column stops and an officer comes down the line making everybody put out his cigarette and you feel you are drawing near to the presence of Lieutenant General Drum. Then you ride on a piece and there is a tent and

It has been said that advertising is a persuasive force, and advertising does often persuade you to buy the products or services of the advertiser. What we are in danger of forgetting is that advertising is an informative force and that it doesn't persuade anybody to buy anything unless it gives some good "reasons why."

Today, advertising is being asked to perform some new functions, all informative. The business scene has been changing, and it is up to advertising to give you up-to-the-minute news of what is happening, as well as what is going to happen. That news is important to you, and firms that seek your patronage should be relaying it to you.

Some manufacturers are anticipating shortages in their fields of operation. They are accepting their responsibility to their public by giving advice that can be valuable to that public. They are preaching a gospel of conservation, warning a war on waste.

They do not want a public that has made them successful to suffer while a substantial part of their output is being taken for a national defense program. They feel it is their duty to do everything in their power to keep things functioning normally.

A few years ago, cynics would have scoffed at any seer who might have dared the predictions that tire manufacturers would be advertising, "Don't Waste Tire

Stuckey Warns Of Too Many Farm Markets

Less Competition, Lower Average Prices Seen as Result.

Director H. P. Stuckey of the Georgia Experiment Station said yesterday "great caution should be exercised" not to build too many farmers' markets in the state.

"Each new market," he asserted in his annual report to University System regents, "reduces the volume of produce in the competing markets and tends to divide buyers and sellers into smaller groups, which may lead to less competition and lower average prices."

The report listed 12 wholesale fruit and vegetable markets in Georgia. Seven are operated by the State Department of Agriculture, four by local farmers' co-operatives and one, at Cordele, by private owners.

Information collected on the markets showed, he said, there were few facilities for grading, packaging or inspecting. He added that they serve "only as a meeting place for buyers and sellers."

Stuckey asserted that "because of farmers' competition in selling and reported buyers' collusion to beat down prices, it may become necessary for a marketing authority to take a definite part in the regulation of trading."

"If it should become necessary for the markets to act as the selling agents for the producers, management will become even greater in importance than it is now."

"Trained and experienced managers, and above all honest managers, are essential to the success of these markets and to the further development of fruit and vegetable production in the state."

"Complete records of sales on these markets could serve a very useful purpose by providing ready information on developments in the producing areas."

Sockwell, 43, filling station operator, near Lithonia, and placed in jail, according to Sheriff W. H. Hutchins. A jury called by Coroner J. J. Higgins brought in a verdict of murder and recommended Head be bound over to the December term of superior court.

Sockwell is survived by his wife; a brother, J. L. Sockwell, of Lithonia, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Sockwell, of DeKalb county.

Regulation of Rents in Augusta Sought by U.S.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Nov. 16.—(AP) Mayor James M. Wooddall said today he had been asked by the Office of Price Administration to name a local fair rents committee to regulate exorbitant rentals.

He explained there was little tendency toward profiteering in Augusta so far, but said the committee would prevent the growth of housing problems due to defense expansion.

Two OPA officials, Frank C. Ralls and P. B. Daley, already have conferred here with Camp Gordon authorities and representatives of tenant and landlord interests.

Ralls said the committee will hear complaints of alleged rent profiteering and will be empowered to curb exorbitant or unusual lease rates. Similar committees have been appointed in 34 cities of the Fourth Corps area.

Ralls pointed out that communities with rapidly expanding Army camps or defense industries often found housing facilities were too limited to meet the demand. Thus rents became out of proportion.

ONE WORD MORE

Talmadge is again attempting to make suckers of the rural press, just as he has tried to make suckers of the country people while claiming to be serving them. He is attempting to make the people of Georgia believe he is serving their best interests, when if the truth were known he is really serving the interests of a few select friends and a few select groups. He is not serving the people when he makes a mockery of their educational system built by painstaking effort over a period of years, and many of his other apparent services to the people have really been services to certain special interests.

We stayed at that pier for two full days. Monotonous days they were, with nothing to do save lounge around, eat and watched

My love is a flame that gilds the ground
 Around it where it lies.
 And I shall warm-me while it burns;
 And leave it when it dies.

Negro Choruses: Many Are Good—But Not All

Few days ago I was invited down to a farm in south Georgia for a little harvest celebration at which a number of northern visitors were guests. The barbecue was good and the hospitality was everything which could be desired and the company was more than excellent.

The host announced a real treat for the visitors. The Negro hands on the plantation were going to sing. Swell!

The visitors from the east were polite. It was wonderful. But—in a chat with me afterward—they wondered why Negro voices were so highly esteemed. So I had to do a little explaining.

The southern Negro is popularly supposed to have a "natchul voice." A Negro chorus is supposed to have harmony in the system and an unerring ear for pitch. I wish that were true.

But it isn't.

If you were visiting a steel plant and the boss man asked eight white employees to line up and sing you'd probably suffer. I know I would.

I'll admit that Negroes sing better—in spirituals—than most white folk. Take the Big Bethel Choir—No. 1, or No. 2. Take that famous Negro chorus you hear in the movies sometimes—notably in "Showboat." Boy, they get you!

But it is a Georgia fallacy that any two plow hands and their wives make a vocal quartet. Some of the most excruciating sounds I have ever heard have emanated from a group of farm workers bearing down on "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" or "Down by the Riverside," two spirituals I love. I have no kick coming. Those people were hired to work—not sing.

I'll concede that any eight black folk, gathered at random, could do a better job of "I Ain't Goin' to Study Vah No Mo" than any white beer hall quartet could do with "Sweet Adeline." But this idea that all Negroes, assembled from the furrows, can lift you off your feet with a spiritual is all bushwa. Too many of them are persistently off the key.

Colonel Cuyler Calls

Colonel Telamon Cuyler was a caller in the building a few days ago. With his eloquent cane, with which he delivers gestures, to the peril of chandeliers and passing reporters or publicity hounds. My criticism, if any, is that his cane misses the publicity seekers and hits the reporters. But that's just in passing.

You don't see so many men carrying canes down in this benighted south any more. And few silk hats and cutaway coats—I believe they're called "morning coats" now.

When I was employed for a brief interval in New York I was told the mark of a newspaperman—a top newspaperman—was that he carried a cane. So I invested in a malacca—price $3.50.

I found the upkeep on cane was almost as bad as the tips. Because the cane, if it had a crooked handle—or right-angle, if you prefer.

On every evening—or morning—when I reached my palatial apartments and doffed my dinner jacket and garments underneath it, I'd feel something was missing. It was my cane. Or do you prefer "walking sticks"? Which will be all right with me.

Mr. Jones' Cane

The late Paul Jones, of Canton, whom all his acquaintances loved, told a cane. It was his custom to descend upon an Atlanta hotel, invite his friends to come around for a visit, and tell them what's what. Punctuated with a whack over the back with the cane. Which was almost as bad as one of those guys who accentuate a presumably funny story with a punch in the ribs.

Inced to the 33d degree, I once grabbed Mr. Jones' cane because my back ribs couldn't take it any more—broke it over my knee, as Dartagnan might have done to an adversary's sword, and said: "You'll whack nobody else with that cane." To which Paul replied: "I have a cane more up in my room. Come on up."

But, as I was saying, Colonel Telamon Cuyler has ceased writing his reminiscences of the Gay '90s in Atlanta. And is engaged in the practice of international law. His office is at Wayside, near Gray, Ga., which is between Macon and Milledgeville.

EVIDENCE DOESN'T BACK POSITION OF TALMADGE.

Editor Constitution: I read very carefully the page of evidence submitted by Governor Talmadge in which he attempts to show that his charge of racial co-education made against Dean Walter D. Cocking was actually supported by the evidence. I am unable to see the evidence as sustaining his position.

The evidence does show that Dr. Cocking was wholly unprejudiced in his efforts to advance higher education for Negro students. His whole theme was to encourage Negro education and to that end he was seeking a wider co-operation with Negro schools. At no point in the evidence did there appear an advocacy of an educational institution wherein Negroes would be intermingled with white students.

Facilities for Negro education have expanded under liberal management until its importance suggested co-operative management by leading Negro educators. This proposed to increase self-management of Negro schools by Negro educators was all that appears in the record.

I was amazed to read in the Governor's signed part of his page advertisement this statement: "On these same dates Dr. Cocking also bragged that it would be only a short time before white people would be applying for admittance to strictly Negro schools, such as Hampton in Virginia and Meharry in Nashville, Tenn." That statement was based upon the following declaration made by Dr. Cocking in the Governor's purported record of evidence: "I rather think the time is fast approaching when whites will be asking admittance, after a time, in certain of our better Negro institutions, such as Hampton and Meharry, certain phases of work."

Note that last phrase "certain phases of work" was to be asked for. The Governor deliberately chose to mislead the reader into believing that Dr. Cocking had "bragged" that it would be only a short time before "white people would be applying for admittance to strictly Negro colleges." For the Governor to resort to such open deception goes to show how hard-pun the Governor is to bolster his political crime against the great educational institutions of his state.

The controversy between Dr.

Cocking and Mrs. Sylla W. Hamilton was based upon purely verbal or word of mouth evidence. From other sources of evidence it would appear that Mrs. Hamilton misunderstood the proposal made by Dr. Cocking in his efforts to outline an "integrated" system for improved collaboration between Negro schools that were operating wholly under white management.

If the Governor had declared open hostility to any and all education for Negroes, it would have been in keeping with the course he has followed. That would have been a consistent position for attack upon Dr. Cocking who admittedly was striving to advance the opportunities for higher education and increased self-management for Negro educational institutions.

Chairman Sandy Beaver is working on the only plan that will save the discrediting of the state's most important educational institutions, and that is to go back to the place where the Governor "inadvertently" went haywire under pressure of his racial prejudices.

CHARLES H. EMMONS.

COMMENTS EDITORIAL ON LABOR PROBLEMS

Editor, Constitution: I don't think I would be a good citizen if I didn't compliment you on your editorial in this morning's Constitution in reference to strikes, labor leaders, Wagner act, and Senator George's stand. In the opinion of most businessmen, we are headed for trouble unless something is done to curb the growing power of many of the unions and their leaders. The public will be most grateful to The Atlanta Constitution and other leading newspapers who will present a solid front in this matter.

Good luck and best wishes.

CLEVE ALLEN.

Underprivileged children will receive the entire benefits from this carnival, therefore a record attendance is expected.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

KANSAS CITY.
In the October issue of The National Municipal Review, 1941, appears an article on Kansas City, by Stanley High, which every city dweller in this country should read. The article is reproduced, in abbreviated form, in the November issue of The Reader's Digest.

"Politically calloused Kansas City," writes Mr. High, "has its chin up. A campaign, fought from the street corners, in the pulpits, and at the front door of every home, in which the women gave the touch that finished the job has lifted Kansas City from a near-record low among American municipalities to rank with the best."

Mr. High goes on to relate the story in detail—how the revolt began in 1932, when a group of young Kansas City citizens started a movement to educate the younger generations of voters in "good government." Upshot of that venture was a bipartisan Fusion ticket in 1934 in which two places on the eight-man city council were filled by the Fusion ticket. Three men were killed at the polling places by armed thugs, employed by the machine. Alarmed, the political bosses padded voting lists for 1936 until 35 per cent of the names were fraudulent. The machine won handsomely that year, but the stench was so bad that the federal government had to take a hand. Successive grand juries indicted 280 of the machine's faithful, and 280 of them were convicted. The big shots, including Pendergast, escaped, but in 1938 the federal government pinned roses on Pendergast and all his gang, and he went off to prison.

The businessmen got interested, and discovered a secret payroll by which the machine financed its precinct workers from the treasury. Led by the Kansas City Star, the aroused citizens of Kansas City really went to town in the 1940 election, filling seven of the eight seats in city council, and electing John B. Gage, prominent lawyer, as mayor. Since then things have really been happening in Kansas City. Immemorial deficits have been turned into a present cash surplus of a million and a half dollars. Gangsters now give Kansas City a wide berth. The 12-block red-light district and the gambling joints have been shut tight. Robberies have been reduced 78 per cent, and auto thefts reduced from 186 to 18 a month.

Instead of a dozen inadequately supervised playgrounds, the city now runs and supervises 59 playgrounds. Juvenile delinquency has been reduced 80 per cent. L. B. Reed, a member of FBI's Kansas City staff, was made police chief. The force is now largely composed of young men, selected on a merit system.

I want to devote this last paragraph to the figures above cited with reference to what was done in Kansas City for the children, particularly the underprivileged children, in providing adequate playground facilities, and the amazing results. Here in Atlanta, and perhaps in other Georgia cities, we need very much to study ways and means of expanding our facilities for playgrounds, and I am grateful for an aroused interest in Atlanta on this subject, thanks to The Constitution, especially, for its recent appeal in that direction. More about this tomorrow.

Coolidge & Son Present Exclusive Innovation in Wall Paper

'Color-Locked' Harmony in Decoration

New and Interesting Theme for Home Decoration by 'Imperial.'

F. J. Coolidge & Sons, sole distributors of Imperial washable wallpapers in this section of the country, introduces an entirely new and interesting theme for home decorating.

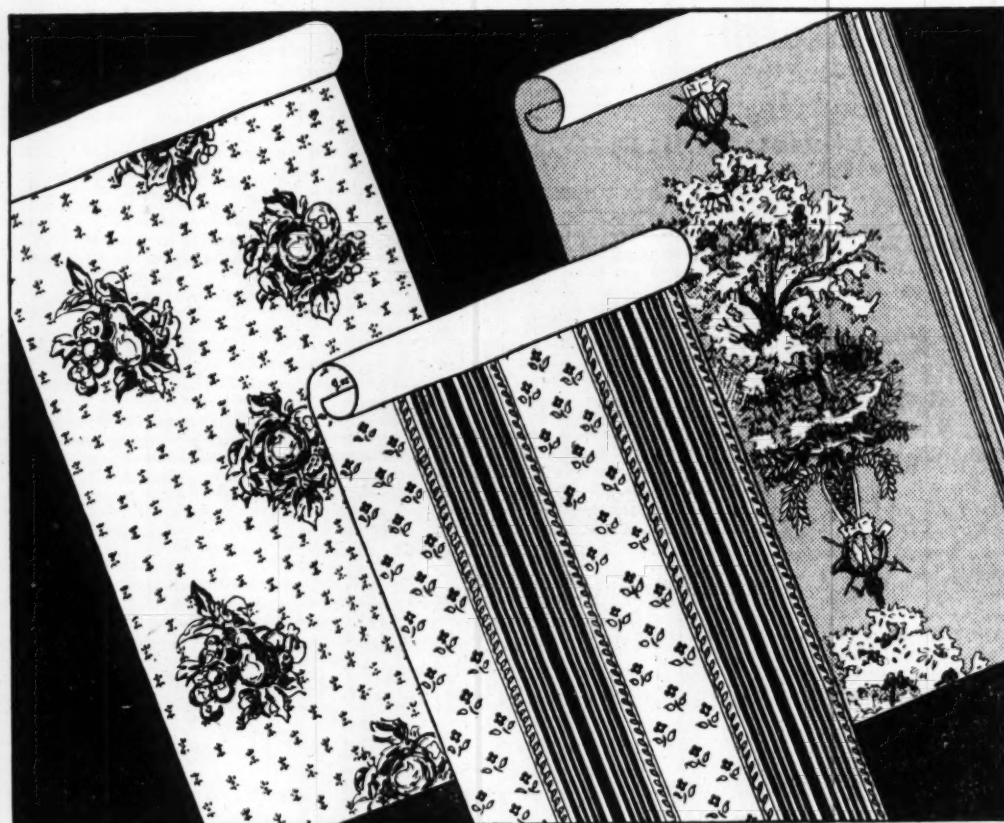

"Color-Locked," an exclusive patented process of color-binding which, coupled with Imperial's experience and control, produces wallpapers with colors insoluble in water and dry cleaning fluids, and highly resistant to light.

Provides Harmony.
The vogue for ensemble papers has grown to such proportions that now they are being used in the same room as well as in adjoining rooms.

It is also good decorating to combine complementary papers in the same room.
Imperial papers solve all problems, for these papers have been especially designed to go together. They harmonize both as to color and pattern.

Shown herewith is a group of three Imperial "Color-Locked" papers. They illustrate the ensemble idea to perfection. Patterns are entirely different, yet each harmonizes with the others.

Decorating Ideas.
A recognized authority on home decoration, and a designer of national renown, Jean McLean has contributed her talents to creating many of the color-locked ideas to be seen in the new Imperial wallpapers. For example, she says:

"Today certain colors are not definitely assigned to any room. We may well use so-called 'bed-room colors' of peach, aqua, blue, yellow and ivory in living rooms, and in turn choose rich, intense colors for bedrooms. The purpose of a room, the color of rugs, draperies and furniture should determine the selection of color for your wallpaper. Deep, intense colors darken a room and appear to reduce its size. Shades such as maroon, deep blue, Empire green, cocoa brown are, therefore, logical choices for rooms where a snug air of seclusion is desired. Tones of beige, brown, green, maroon and deep-toned blue are consistent with a sturdy, substantial type of decoration.

Your wallpaper offers unusual opportunity to "tie together" the various color elements of your rooms in a harmonious effect. If you are redecorating a room from top to bottom, the wallpaper will establish your color scheme when selecting fabrics or furniture covers, draperies and rugs. If you are not buying new furnishings, you should select a paper blending with the established color scheme." It is interesting to note that Imperial "Color-Locked" papers are inexpensive, quite within the reach of families of average income.

Papers are now on display at Coolidge's nine retail stores in Atlanta, Decatur and East Point. The public is invited to see them.

Fine Record Made by Blue Ribbon Chicks

Survey Shows Only 3 Per Cent Loss Out of Hundreds of Shipments.

Showing a loss less than 3 per cent in the first 21 days after receiving a shipment of chicks from the Blue Ribbon Hatchery is the record made by the feathery little tribe, thousands of which are shipped all over the country—east, south, north and west.

J. I. Hosford, owner and manager of Blue Ribbon Hatchery, on South Forsyth street, is quite enthused and gratified at the livability record of his chicks.

To get a correct and authentic record of how the little fellows live and thrive after shipment, Mr. Hosford sent an inquiry to 300 customers, with a return card for answer. They were asked did they lose any of the chicks sent them (on a certain date) during the first 21 days after receiving them. Of the 300 asked, 125 cards were returned, and an analysis showed that less than 3 per cent were lost.

"That shows the high percentage that live of Blue Ribbon chicks that we hatch," said Mr. Hosford.

"When anyone buys Blue Ribbon champion chicks," continued Mr. Hosford, "they can bank on getting high quality and genuine value. Each bird in every flock that supplies the eggs that we hatch is a pure-bred fowl, selected for size, color, productive ability, health and vigor. Georgia-United States approved, pullover tested. This work is done under official supervision and buyers take no chance on the breeding and blood testing when they choose Blue Ribbon champion chicks."

The Blue Ribbon Hatchery is officially approved by the United States Agricultural Department. It is most interesting to stroll through the big hatchery on South Forsyth street. Large brooders and feeders are filled with the fluffy little chicks seen scratching and scurrying about make a feast for the eyes of any who are interested in poultry raising.

The Blue Ribbon Hatchery can supply the broods for those who do not go in for hatching, and can also supply the brooder, if one is desired. As a matter of fact, if you haven't a brooder house, one can be constructed very cheaply, according to Mr. Hosford.

Many Students Studying Home Decoration

School in Erlanger Building Has Splendid Enrollment.

Since beginning its fifth year last September 2, the Atlanta School of Interior Decoration has enjoyed a splendid enrollment.

Students during this term, as in other past terms, are enrolled from all over Georgia and neighboring states.

The Atlanta School of Interior Decoration, which was founded and is conducted by Miss Elizabeth Neely, B. S., offers a professional two-year course, completed four semesters of four and one-half months each. Class hours are from 9 to 1 o'clock Monday through Fridays, inclusive. It is located in the Erlanger building, on Peachtree street.

Miss Neely received her preparation at New York School of Fine and Applied Art in New York, and in Paris, and also taught interior decoration at Grand Central School of Art, in New York city.

People are beginning to realize the importance of harmony, balance and rhythm in the numerous combinations of objects and ideas that transform a house into a home.

The first year of training in the Atlanta school is based on fundamental principles of design and arrangement as well as a sound knowledge of the history of art and architecture throughout the ages. Through a series of steps, each more advanced than the last, the student learns to work out pleasing arrangements in elevations of rooms, together with their floor plans. This then leads to rendering the rooms in a perspective view.

The first-year student has two textbooks. These are augmented by lectures twice a week, library research and prescribed parallel reading.

Notebooks are submitted and examinations held at appointed times during the year.

The advanced students do intense study and drill of historic styles. Each style is studied from the following angles: historical background, architectural background, furniture and its designers, decorative motifs, room arrangement, fabrics, rugs, objects of art and color. Also a complete room is worked out in each style. This includes floor plan, elevations, full-size moldings and a perspective view rendered in color.

Two illustrated lectures each week are followed by library research and prescribed parallel reading. Completely illustrated notebooks and scrapbooks must be submitted by second-year students. Examinations are held at appointed times during the year.

COAL A-PLenty—Above shows one of the well-filled coal yards operated by the Horne Coal Company.

Horne Coal Co. Urges Prompt Buying of Fuel

'Winter of 1917, 1918,' Says Horne, 'Should Make Us Act.'

"Remember when the frost is on the pumpkins and there's crispness in the air—it's time for economical operation of your heating plant; which means good coal," says H. L. Horne, president of the Horne Coal Company.

"We offer just that in either our Red Banner or Black Glow coals and Colonial coke. The coals are prepared in all sizes for furnaces, heaters, stoves, or grates, plus a perfectly mixed stoker coal. To begin a perfect day—start the fire tomorrow with these famous coals and your home will be comfortable with a minimum of cost. Red Banner is known for its long lasting, low ash with a maximum of heat. Just try it and be convinced."

The need for coal in all industries has increased by more than half, especially so with railroads and manufacturers of defense material. This will take from the domestic market millions of tons of bituminous coal. That your home may be comfortable during the winter, the Horne Coal Company urges all of its customers and friends to put in an adequate supply of coal now. In storing coal, you not only aid national defense, but also help in distributing coal over a longer period and you will therefore be instrumental in preventing a serious fuel shortage this winter.

The price of coal is lower at the present time than it will be when colder weather arrives and the rush orders pile up at the mines. At this time a serious coal shortage is predicted; this will cause short running time at the mines and domestic coal will have to go to industries manufacturing defense material. The Bituminous Coal Consumers' Council, Washington, D. C., is asking the public to help by buying coal while it is available. The Horne Coal Company's yards are well stocked with high quality coal in all sizes and for all purposes and advises all consumers of fuel to place their orders now. Mr. Horne stressed that in buying coal the best is more economical and recommends "Red Banner" and "Black Glow" to give utmost satisfaction and heat economy. The Horne Coal Company maintains a large fleet of trucks to take care of coal orders at all times.

Black Glow is known by its easy lighting, free burning, quick fire and maximum heating qualities, and Colonial coke is outstanding in heating, in that it produces no smoke, burns freely enough, yet will hold fire for hours. Remember, in Colonial coke you get the finest quality obtainable.

ADVANTAGES OF GASTEAM—Here is A. H. Rumboldt, district manager, and C. O. Forrester, of Clow Gasteam Heating Company, discussing the merits and advantages of Clow Gasteam products.

Ample Stocks Shown Of Gasteam Radiators, Heaters

A visit to the Clow Gasteam Heating Company, at 427 Peachtree street, N. E., would convince anyone that there is no need for homes to suffer this winter from lack of proper heating.

This company, of which A. H. Rumboldt is district manager, is distributor for Clow gas-fired unit heaters, Gasteam radiators and Jr.-M Transite flue pipe.

The company has anticipated the requirements of customers by establishing ample stocks of all equipment in its Atlanta warehouse.

Clow gas-fired ceiling type unit heaters, as well as the Gasteam radiators, are made with indestructible gray, cast iron heat exchangers, give maximum long life with minimum upkeep expense.

The Clow firm are pioneers in individually operated gas heating equipment, having been manufacturing their equipment for over 30 years with nation-wide distribution.

If you are interested in providing home comfort in an economical way, then you should get in touch with the Clow Gasteam Heating Company. There you will find Mr. Rumboldt and others glad to confer with you about the proper heating of your home.

The Clow system permits the placing of heat exactly where it is needed and in the volume in which it is wanted, without waste of fuel and without expensive insulated piping, furnace, fuel storage space and other inconveniences of older methods of heating.

Each radiator is a self-contained heating plant. When the room in which it is installed is not in use, it can be turned off and the expense of operating entirely stopped. The heating unit is so designed that it consumes an absolute minimum of fuel even when operating full blast. It requires a minimum of attention, is clean, neat and attractive in appearance.

In apartment buildings Clow Gasteam makes it possible for each tenant to have comfortable heat to meet his own individual needs, day or night. Each tenant provides his own heat to suit himself. He may have heat all night if he wants it. He may open his windows as wide as he cares to without interfering with the heat in the other apartments. If the occupants are away all day, but one Gasteam radiator is turned off, and there is no fuel waste.

The great variation in the living habits of so many different tenants makes it impossible to suit the heating wants of all of them with anything like economy except with a system like Clow Gasteam.

Complete engineering and price information may be secured from their district office, located at 427 Peachtree street, N. E.

North Georgia Methodist Parley To Draw 314 Laymen

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

Methodist laymen numbering 314 will be in attendance at the annual session of the North Georgia Conference this week, beginning Wednesday night at Wesley Memorial church. Conspicuous among the laymen elected to participate in the conference deliberations will be Smith L. Johnston, of Woodstock, the conference lay leader. With him in promoting laymen's activities will be the 10 district lay leaders, with a similar number of associate leaders.

Among the 314 lay delegates to be present will be 59 women, four of which are wives of Methodist pastors. Methodist law during recent years stipulates that each charge in a conference may have lay representation in the annual meeting. At first no laymen were in the membership, when there followed the law admitting a number of laymen in proportion to district membership. All these laymen expected this week at conference have been elected by their quarterly conferences, and will be accorded all rights and privileges of the conference floor, and be assigned to membership and conference boards and committees.

Next Friday morning's program has for the order of the day special consideration of "Methodism's World Responsibility," at which time Dr. Harvey W. Cox, of Emory University, is to speak on "Methodism and Its Laymen," and Bishop Moore is to speak on "North Georgia's Responsibility." The entire membership of the lay activities board will occupy seats on the platform.

Names of lay delegates and the charges they represent are as follows:

Atlanta West District—Claude West, Acworth; C. T. McEwen, Austell; Dr. C. W. Childs, Bethany; W. B. Hinton, Cascade; Ben Robertson, Center Hill; Virlyn Moore Jr., Collins Memorial; Miss Maybelle Haymes, Elizabeth; J. F. ## Some Rules For Dealing With A Bad Appendix

By Dr. William Brady.

Through the years incorrigible readers have been expressing the hope that I may one day (a) get pneumonia from exposure to foul weather, (b) suffer a "nervous breakdown" or at least "neurasthenia" from exhaustion of my "nervous energy" or (c) have acute "indigestion." Understand, they are not malevolent about it; they just think that a little personal experience with these hypothetical ailments would modify my uncompromising attitude. But aside from filing the letters in my scrapbook I never gave it another thought—except once for three long hours.

One dismal, chilly autumn day I lunched on half a coconut, which is fine chewing and good nutrition—each ounce yields 170 calories, as compared with peanuts, each ounce of which yields 160 calories, or plain wheat, each ounce of which yields 105 calories. An hour later I was seized with what purported to be acute indigestion. No pain, but plenty of distress and anxiety.

I don't know which worried me more, the distress in the epigastrium or the odious thought that it might be retribution at last. I managed to get home and into bed with an assortment of hot water bottles and the like, and tossed and groaned until the doctor arrived and diagnosed appendicitis. I say there was no pain at all, but only a feeling of extreme tension. The good doctor gave me some medicine hypodermically and soon I was indifferent about the attack. At operation the appendix was found gangrenous. That was the one and only spell of "indigestion" I ever had.

It is a popular belief that acute appendicitis begins with pain in the right lower quadrant of the belly. It doesn't. In the majority of cases the distress or pain of acute appendicitis is felt first in the epigastrium or "pit of the stomach," and only after several hours does the lower right quadrant become tender or sensitive to touch or pressure, with evident rigidity or hardness of the belly muscles over the appendix region. Because of this error the characteristic early symptoms of appendicitis are often ascribed to "indigestion" or "something you ate" and the attack wrongly treated.

Experience has amply proved that it is wrong and perhaps dangerous to take a laxative or cathartic of any kind as an emergency for any acute bellyache or similar distress. Should the illness prove to be appendicitis a cathartic tends to aggravate the inflammation and to cause it to spread.

Far from implying that every bellyache is appendicitis I wish merely to assure you that the best of my knowledge and belief no physic, whether castor oil, salts or so-called "mild" or non-irritating laxative, is an effective remedy for what purports to be indigestion, and in my opinion the safest course for any such illness is to keep perfectly quiet, in bed if possible, take no food and no water and no medicine, get what comfort you can from external applications of heat both to the belly and especially to the feet, and hold everything off until the doctor comes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Letuce.

Recently I read somewhere that it is wrong to discard the limp or bruised outer leaves of cabbage and lettuce, as these contain most of the calcium. Is there any basis for this? (Mrs. W. A. E.)

Answer—Yes, and the outer leaves contain most of the vitamins, too. However, if they are much bruised or handling, it is better to discard them, as a precaution against botulism.

Salt and Obesity.

Please state what effect use of much salt has on body weight. (T. M.)

Answer—Too much salt tends to encourage overeating and retention of water in the body tissues and blood. Good rule not to add any salt to food at table, as the salt naturally in such foods as milk, meat, eggs, cheese, is sufficient to keep you from overeating in cooking.

MY DAY: First Lady Spends 'A Spicy Day'

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY, Friday.—Miss Caroline Haskett, honorary adviser to the British minister and ministry of labor on women's training, came to lunch with me yesterday and told me of their plans to invite some women of various organizations in this country to visit England, and then report back to the people of this country on the work being done by women over there.

I had to beg them to hurry because I found the papers heavy. When they were taken over by the Boy Scout, I realized that he must find them just as heavy. Finally, they were safely on the truck. After signing three autographs, everybody departed happily.

Since then I have done a variety of things, and since variety is the spice of life, this has been a spicy day.

"Bundles for Britain" has a most enchanting "All America" shop, where I am sure many people will find unique Christmas gifts. The head, done by Robert Brax, of the President, which is on exhibition in Mr. Frey's gallery, seems to me very fine.

The Child Study Association lunch was most interesting. Dr. Edward C. Lindemann told us of the purposes of the organization and introduced Dr. David Levy, who gave a learned paper on hate and intolerance. Dr. Everett R. Clinchy closed with a convincing plea for us to prove the possibility of unity, in spite of creed and religious differences.

Inches Off Your Waistline Mean Years on Your Lifeline

By Ida Jean Kain.

This is a request number. By five-sixths of a second or less. With 50 pounds overweight, you have 40 extra miles of blood vessels!

In the face of these facts it is scarcely surprising that the weights are especially susceptible to various degenerative diseases, high blood pressure among them. Statistics carefully compiled by the life insurance companies not only point to obesity as the forerunner of diseases of the heart, circulatory system, kidneys and pancreas, but also establish a higher mortality rate among the obese.

On the basis of research, it is estimated that the mortality from heart disease among the obese is two and one-half times as high as among normal weights or underweights; from circulatory disease, almost twice as high. A study of 26,000 deaths revealed that no underweights had died from diabetes.

When your doctor advises you to reduce, take him seriously. You can get rid of your excess weight at the rate of one to two pounds per week and you can do it on a balanced low calorie menu that cuts down the handicap of fat and assures you of all the essentials concerned in high vitality.

Your dietitian, IDA JEAN KAIN, If you are excessively over normal weight, preface your reducing program with a visit to your doctor and ask which he approves for you—the "High Protein Diet" or the "Twenty-One Day Diet." ## Radio Star Picks A Fight; Finds His Opponent Is Champion, Joe Louis

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 16.—(INS.) I don't suppose there was any doubt in the minds of anyone at 20th Century-Fox that Roddy McDowall would be a sensation after he was seen in "How Green Was My Valley" but not even Roddy McDowall realized the little fellow would become famous over night after the picture was shown in New York. Roddy has been so much editorialized in the New York papers and by those of us who saw him here in Hollywood that he was to find an important story for him. So $45,000—and that ain't hay, has been paid for "My Friend Flicka," the story of a boy and a horse by Mary O'Hara for Roddy.

He appears in "Confirm or Deny" and in another picture called "Sunny Side" but neither role is comparable to the one in the novel just bought for him. Since Freddy Bartholomew has grown up, Shirley Temple a young lady, there's room for a new child actor and Roddy seems to fill that bill.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: The next time Milton Berle gets tough with the driver of a car that bumps fenders with his—he'll look to see who he is sassing! Milton is getting the ribbing of his life over the fracas that took place in front of Slapsy Maxie's cafe Wednesday night. Just as Senor Berle was parking his car another machine cut in and hooked his fender. Not one to take such carelessness lying down—Milton jumped out of his car, jerked the other door open, grabbed the driver by the collar—and looked smack into the face of World Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis. Joe was grinning from ear to ear. I'll pay for any damage to your car, Mr. Berle," the courteous champ suggested. "Oh, forget it," gasped Milton. "Just consider it an autograph!"

Don't be surprised if Norma Shearer's next address is the Warner studio. Her M-G-M contract calls for an outside movie and at this moment she is reading "The Gay Sisters." Yes, I know it was purchased for Bette Davis but Bette cannot possibly make all the movies the enthusiastic Warner bosses have for her. There just aren't that many months in the year. Henry Blaine, the producer, is eager to get "The Gay Sisters" started and Norma is interested—especially since she would have such a good acting role. I hear, through the grapevine route, that she only has one more picture on her present M-G-M contract so it's possible she may think it a good idea to make her outside movie now.

Those who know their Broadway appreciate how close the late Sam Harris was to George M. Cohan when each was struggling for recognition. They married sisters—the pretty Nolan girls, so it is interesting that Richard Whorf, who is slight and dark like Sam, has been chosen for the Harris role in "Yankee Doodle Dandy." Although Whorf, formerly associated with Lunt and Fontanne, has made three pictures, only one has been released. Ona Munson's nose-breaking stunt, I am sorry to say, did her no good. Rosemary De Camp was chosen today to play Cohan's mother. There has been a lot of chatter about Ona's nose—some say it was a P. A. stunt—others that she did fracture a small bone.

London is paging Jeffrey Lynn. Oh, not for the war, but to be starred in "Thunder Rock" for Boulding Charter Film Company. That's the organization that made "Pastor Hall," the highly controversial story which James Roosevelt bought and released, and in which the first lady herself said a foreword. "Thunder Rock" is to be made at Denham, and if Jeff goes he would have to leave almost immediately. Whether or not Warners will give their consent is another matter. After all they hold a contract with him. It certainly goes to show that war or no war our American actors are in demand in London.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Jack Hopkins, the young Cleveland millionaire, flew to New York to see Linda Darnell. Linda and her mother stay in the big town for an additional two weeks; Benny Thau, M-G-M executive, is in the Good Samaritan trying to give an injured leg a chance to get well; Brenda Joyce is wearing a new silver fox muff and hat—a Christmas present from her husband who just couldn't wait to give it to her; Rosalind Russell and Freddie Brison are now in New York—and so is Lana Turner; Orry Kelly goes there tomorrow and goody, we go November 28th; Dorothy Sebastian looking beautiful with Agent Bob Ratford at Charley Foy's; Gail Patrick and Phil Kellogg doing a rumba at the Mocambo; of all things—Charlie Chaplin has been sending Hedy Lamarr French pastries and goody cakes. Charlie shouldn't do it when he's gal tries to diet; Mary Howard is bedded with the flu; ex-Warden Lewis E. Lawes arrives tomorrow to work on the story of his life, which Warners are making; W. C. Fields drinking milk—and I mean milk, at Leones; Joan Davis—if you care, and her husband, Cy Wells, at the Hollywood Tropics acting as if they'd never had a battle; that was a gorgeous blonde with Bentley Ryan at the Rhum-Boogie and no one seems to know her name; Charles Starrett should really ride a bike. He was just recuperating from 14 stitches taken in his scalp after an automobile accident. See you tomorrow!

Liquid Sachet Has Lasting Fragrance

By Winifred Ware.

Sweet smelling preparations are important in feminine lives. There is one in particular which combines the unusual with the delightful to make a product which should please all women.

This amusing and fascinating preparation is called a liquid sachet, and has the good features of both perfume and sachet. It comes in a fascinating, squatty bottle with a twisted glass rod tied to its golden top. This is the applicator. You dip the rod into the creamy pink stuff and apply a dot of it here and there about your person. You use the same amount you would of perfume, but you will be surprised to find how long it lasts. The solid contents seem to hold the fragrance longer.

The odor in itself is delightful. It's a lifting fragrance, colorful and gay. Its sweetness has a spicy balance, yet it's not too heavy for daytime use. Somehow it makes you think of bright colors and gay laughter. It's a perfume to inspire good times.

A pretty little crystal pot of the sachet liquid, attractively packaged in a sprightly decorated box costs but $1.50. I'll be glad to tell you where you can get it if you call Winifred Ware at Walnut 6565 or write in care of The Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Forget Dream Man and Accept Reality

Dear Dixie:

I have always had my ideal of the man I wanted to marry. Once or twice I have thought that I had found him, but I learned none too soon that I was mistaken. I still dream of him and expect to meet him some time, but the years are slipping by and I am beginning to think it is impossible. A very nice man has asked me to marry him, but I cannot make up my mind what to do. He is attractive looking, has a nice job and a good salary. I know if I marry him, I will be forever thinking of my dream man. What do you think I should do? THIRTY.

I think you had better forget that romantic fantasy in which you dream of your fairy prince. Have you thought of considering the young man you mention without comparing him with this imaginary man? You are probably so blinded with the glamor of some one of your own imagination that you cannot see the good qualities of this young man. It is not an uncommon situation for many girls are so absorbed in their search for Mr. Dream that they pass up Mr. Real. Miracles such as finding your dream man seldom happen in real life, so you had better stop dreaming and wake up to the value of your friends.

known to her while you are there as a guest or will tell her as soon as you have gone. When he does this, the wife will never be convinced that your meeting her was accidental. She will think that you deliberately planned a friendship with her in order to be with your ex-husband again. To tell her would create a rather delicate situation for both of you. I think the best thing to do would be to tell her jokingly that she had better ask her husband if he wants her dragging in new friends to his home. Also ask her if she has ever told him your name. Perhaps this girl knows about you and does not care. I grant you the situation will be a bit embarrassing, but if your life with him is past, then go and treat him as though you had never seen nor heard of him before.

Check Up On Your Rating With People

"How to Win Friends and Influence People"—right in the title of his famous book Dale Carnegie has put in a nutshell what we all yearn to know.

"Why," asks the young girl, "don't I have more beaux?" "Why haven't I got that raise?" "Why doesn't the young man ambitious to get ahead?" "Why can't I get along with my husband (or wife)?" discouraged married couples demand.

For all of these Dale Carnegie has an answer. For the young girl who wants more friends there's the story of Tippy, a little dog Mr. Carnegie once knew. "He had the perfect technique for making people like him. He liked people himself—and his interest in me was so genuine that I couldn't keep from liking him in return."

To the young man trying to sell himself in business, Mr. Carnegie points out "Most people do too much talking themselves. Let the other man talk himself out."

Many fail, he thinks, because they begin by saying "I'm going to prove to you that..." "I'm going to prove anything..." do it so subtly, so adroitly that no one will feel that you are doing it."

To the unhappily-marrieds Dale Carnegie has this to say, "I know people who would think they had committed a crime if they let their families go for six days without food, but they will let them go for... sometimes 60 years, without giving them the hearty appreciation, the sincere praise they crave almost as much as they crave food."

EX-WIFE FACES EMBARRASSING SITUATION

I divorced my husband several years ago and took my name back. Recently I moved here from another city and I have met a very attractive girl. She has asked me to her home several times, but since I work I have given that as an excuse for not going. Now she wants me to come to see her some night and meet her husband, too. I have not accepted her invitation because her husband is my ex-husband! I do not know what to do. I enjoy her friendship and would like to continue it, but what about "our husbands"? What must I do—tell her the whole truth or just go and pretend I never saw him before? She is wild about him. EX-WIFE.

Going to see her without telling her that you were the ex-wife would be foolish, because your ex-husband will surely make it

Purely Personal Chatter About Atlanta Debutantes

(Editor's Note: This is the ninth of the second annual series of thumbnail sketches of Atlanta debutantes to be featured in Sally Forth's column every Monday. The sketches present intimate glimpses into the lives of the belles whose names are making social history during the winter.)

By SALLY FORTH.

AMID all the glamour and gaiety of the debut season, there is just one thing lacking to make it perfect for lovely Carolyn Reed—she will miss her annual hunting trip on Thanksgiving. For hunting is the favorite sport of this only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Clinton S. Reed, and every year since she was old enough to carry a gun she has accompanied her father on hunting trips to south Georgia. They usually hunt in the territory abounding Dr. Reed's native city of Blakely. Carolyn is the proud possessor of a fine bird dog, given her by friends of her family, that she has named Debbie. At present Debbie is at the Reed country home near Marietta, where she will remain until Carolyn can steal away for a hunting trip.

Next to hunting, Carolyn's favorite pastimes are swimming and horseback riding, which she enjoys at Shohola, her summer home.

MISS CAROLYN REED.

The name, derived from the Indian language, means "Sparkling Water," and legend has it that the Cherokee Indians lived on the land many years ago.

Carolyn is tall, slender and graceful with large, expressive brown eyes. She has a delightful sense of humor and is full of enthusiasm at all times. She enjoys parties and loves a good time, but she found time to complete a secretarial course and has been her father's secretary since she completed school. Although she takes her work seriously, her father insisted that she take leave of absence, so to speak, and enjoy her debut year without having to follow the rigid schedule of a business girl. Carolyn attended Sacred Heart school and Sullins College in Bristol, Va.

She will make her formal bow Wednesday evening at a reception to be given by her parents at the Driving Club, the affair to be the only debut party of the week. She will carry a handsome ivory fan, given her by Mamade Grandmont of New Orleans, a lifelong friend of her grandmother, Mrs. Callie Mattox, also of New Orleans. The fan was purchased in Paris and Madame Grandmont gave it to Carolyn when she was confirmed at the Sacred Heart church. Carolyn's mother, the former Lean Guerra, of New Orleans, resided there until she married Dr. Reed and came to Atlanta to live. The Henry Grady hotel is the Reeds' address during the winter months when they are in town.

MRS. LULA BLACK SIMMS chose a novel way of announcing to a group of her close friends the marriage of her son, Lieutenant Ward Simms, to lovely Gloria Turner, of Durham, N. C. She invited them to lunch with her on Saturday at Peacock Alley, and as a centerpiece for the table she used a beautiful photograph of Gloria.

Colorful ribbon streamers, extending from the fireplace to the guests' places, were caught with cards which bore a description of the pretty young bride.

When the bridal couple arrives to spend the Christmas holidays with Mrs. Simms, she will present her daughter to her friends in person, but at present the likeness of Gloria was the best she could do in the way of an introduction.

The marriage of the popular pair took place recently in Durham, and is announced for the first time today.

Polly Learns That the Stranger Is the Son of the College President

INSTALLMENT II

Then he suddenly put her down and grabbed the paper before repeating, "Are you hurt? Oh, my?"

"Yes. No... No!"

It all hadn't taken a half minute and now Polly burst into laughter. At herself and the funny scene she must have made. The laughter was genuine, musical. She looked up at the big fellow and poked him once in the chest with her finger, an unconscious gesture.

"It's all right," she declared then. "I'm sorry I—"

"No! No, I'm the one to be sorry. Look, you're one of the students, huh?"

"Yes, Polly McMurray."

"Oh, Oh fine! My name is Ken Palmer. I'm here, too."

"You? This is a girl's school?"

"I know, but—look here, this telegram—had you heard? ... Had you? Joy Boone's coming! Joy Boone! She's going to school here. She is!"

Polly waited, looking up at his beaming face in keen amusement, but impressed by his manner even so. Then all at once his name clicked. Palmer! She was suddenly appalled.

"Maybe you better calm down, Dr. Palmer, and start at the beginning. I'm open to conviction but—you look awful young to be a college president! And who in the high hopping hades is Joy Boone?"

Apparently he did not hear. He was staring again. Polly had begun quite naturally to adjust her hat, putting ebony waves back where they belonged and disciplining the wisps that wanted to stay out in the breeze. She had to lift her arms to do it and this gave her added grace and beauty. She was not ill at ease because she wore ranch things and he wore city clothes. Like any sensible girl, she knew when she had the right frame for a picture; she knew, without conceit, that she was pretty; for she had studied out this business of western togs a long while ago.

Nevertheless, her moment of intimacy there had been almost electric; her pulse had stepped up, and the big blond boy was wide-eyed.

"Oh, my!" murmured Ken, vaguely.

"You said that already," Polly reminded him. "But you didn't say who Joy Boone is, Dr. Palmer, nor why all the rush. Perhaps it's none of my business."

"No, I mean yes, Miss—did you say McMurray? Miss McMurray. And I'm not Dr. Palmer."

"Then you're not the new college president?"

"No. That's my dad; but he's tops."

"I'm sure he is," Polly's interest was heightened. Ken Palmer was not only big, he was a good-looking man by any standards, although unconventional, boyish. He wore one of those sport style shirts with basted collar open wide to reveal a lot of neck and shoulders. It was a light tan, to match tan trousers. Shoes were open-work sandals called "primitives" and they looked cool and comfortable and very oh-so! He was dressed exactly right for summer; September in Phoenix, Arizona, is still very warm.

"Say, do you really go here? Sa-a-a-y?"

"I do," Polly smiled. "I'm a senior. I came to register today because I'm going fishing tomorrow."

"I'm going here, and I'm going to like it!"

"I told you this was a girl's school. We never have any male students."

"Right," said Ken, "but—well, it's like this: the trustees couldn't pay dad much. Less, in fact, than he was getting back east, as a professor. But being a college president carries some prestige, and dad hopes maybe he can build up Frontier so that—"

"I know," Polly interrupted, kindly.

"Yep. Well, the fact is, dad couldn't afford to send me anywhere else, so the trustees here got together and voted to make an exception in this one case. For me."

"How nice! One male in a college of 600 girls!"

He grinned, and it was a happy, contagious gesture. "Sure. But I won't bother anybody, or be bothered. I study."

"And—never a date?"

"Not me! I'm immune to women."

"Oh that's right. You study." Polly acted ever so serious.

"Yep. History. American history. It's another good reason for staying here. Somebody gave Frontier College a swell library. Lots of old documents, Army records, letters and such not even catalogued yet. I find 'Precious material from the pioneer era. Invaluable Americana. The southwest is a virgin field for the conscientious scholar who will—"

"The lectures begin Monday, Mr. Palmer," Polly squeaked a smile.

"Oh. I didn't mean to be boring."

"You weren't. But you did rush out with a telegram. Or had you forgotten?"

"Say, I had at that! Say—you distract people. Are you—you are awfully pretty. And I—"

"Oh thank you, kind sir!"

"I'm not joking. I'm—I mean, I've got to move fast. I guess. Look here, she wants us to send a servant to the college airport to meet her."

"Who? Miss Boone?"

"Sure. Read it."

Polly took the yellow sheet. It was a long, and therefore expensive straight-rate telegram, obviously written with blithe disregard for brevity or cost. It was addressed to the president of Frontier University.

"This is to advise you," the message read, "that Miss Joy Kathryn Boone has elected to transfer her college affiliations and after giving due study to all the various catalogues has chosen Frontier for matriculation this fall. I am pleased herewith to submit her entrance and transfer credits, which of course you are at liberty to verify. You will note that they are excellent."

"Miss Boone, as you may know, is a young person of remarkable enthusiasms. She chose a western college partly under my guidance because I feel that the environment there is likely to be more wholesome than the somewhat artificial atmosphere encountered in urban surroundings."

"For Pete's sake!" Polly McMurray interrupted the reading.

"Yeah, sure!" Ken agreed, equally amused. He was reading over her shoulder now.

"You are to reserve the best dormitory suite for her, refinishing it if necessary. Also hire an Indian girl in costume for her personal maid. I shall want residence quarters and maid service somewhere near the campus also. Miss Boone will arrive in her new plane, which I may add she has ordered painted blue and gold, the Frontier University colors. She looks forward to college life with eagerness, sir, and may be expected to take active part in extra-curricular endeavors, especially in her favored sports of tennis, badminton, aviation and riding. You are to order three saddle horses and outfits for her immediately, charging to her account."

"I am wiring $5,000 herewith as initial deposit and will arrange necessary financial credits immediately upon arrival."

"Miss Boone's plane should arrive in Phoenix at 4 p. m. today, so please have servant meet her at college airport."

"Signed: Bettina Carlson. 'Secretary to Miss Boone.'"

Polly handed the telegram back to Ken and caught her forehead in a mock swoon.

"Where—ew!" she breathed.

"I told you!" Ken said. "What'll I do?"

"Do?"

"Yes. Dad said she must be a girl of considerable drive, as well as considerable money. He's so rushed, here at registration time, he asked me to—"

"Of course," Polly was looking off, thinking fast.

"But gosh, Miss McMurray, there's no college airport!"

"No. Yes! Yes, Ken!" She could call him Ken, unconsciously. He was like that. Easy to know and like. "Yes. She expects it. And she isn't used to being disappointed. She's—she's probably even pretty! Listen to me, Ken Palmer!"

Suddenly Polly grabbed him by the shirt front as she might have done her big brother, Ward. A devilish gleam had brightened her eyes.

"Frontier life is going to be exciting this fall, I predict," she said, and then she said a whole lot more, rapidly. She listed items—one, two, three, four—on her fingers like a little girl. And then she sent Ken Palmer away at a run.

"Hurry!" she yelled after him, and herself departed in another direction.

She went through that big oak door (safely, this time!) and to a telephone booth inside; after a bit had her brother Ward on the line. Sister like, she gave him some pat orders. Something of her excitement, too, flower over the wire, and Ward McMurray was a young man.

"Okay, Sis," he agreed. "Four p. m."

"Thanks, Wardy, you're a darling."

She hung up in a hurry and burst out of the booth. For the second time today she ran into a man. He had been walking down the corridor.

"I beg your pardon!" he apologized, smiling. Then he was gone.

Polly stared. There was another edition of Ken! That, surely, was the new president, Dr. Palmer. But he didn't look it. He was youngish himself. A touch of temple gray, but distinguished. A bright smile. A snappy swing to his walk. Head erect. And handsome!

De Mille Play Stars Rooney Tonight at 9

Movie-Struck Young Man Is Role for Mickey.

Cecil B. DeMille will present Mickey Rooney in "Merton of the Movies," which is concerned with the trials and tribulations of a movie-struck young man, on the "Radio Theater" tonight at 9 p. m. over CBS and WGST. "Merton of the Movies" is adapted from the play of the same title by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly.

Merton Gill (Mickey Rooney), a native of Simsbury, Ill., is country-bred and unbelievably naïf, but a good store of common sense helps him to grow up under the hard knocks he sustains.

Merton works in Gashwiler's General Store and dreams of the day he can go to Hollywood for a crack at the movies, there, perhaps to meet his film idols Harold Parmalee and Beula Baxter. Opportunity knocks when Merton gets fired from Gashwiler's store. Free to leave Simsbury, he takes all his savings and goes to Hollywood.

LUCILLE BALL GUEST OF HERBERT MARSHALL

Herbert Marshall has invited glamorous Lucille Ball of the movies to be his guest on the new Old Gold show tonight at 7 p. m. over the Blue network of NBC and WAGA. The show also features the unique comedy team of Bert Wheeler and Hank Ladd and the catchy rhythmic of the Merry Macs.

Lucille Ball is no stranger to the microphone. She has put in guest appearances on the Bergen-McCarthy show and the Kraft Music Hall, and has been featured in Cecil B. DeMille's Lux Radio Theater. She is noted for her wise-cracking humor and her quick comebacks in comedy sparring at the microphone. Her latest film appearance is in "Look Who's Laughing," with Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy and Fibber McGee and Molly.

DORSEY, FIELDS LEAD SPOTLIGHT BANDS ON AIR

Swing and sweet music fans alike will find a diversified, well-rounded selection of leading dance orchestras scheduled on Mutual's "Spotlight Bands" program, when that series goes into its third week of broadcasting tonight.

"Spotlight Bands" is heard Monday through Friday, 10:15 to 10:30 p. m., and Saturdays from 10:15 to 10:45 p. m. over WATL. The latter period is reserved for the band rolling up the largest retail sale of one phonograph recording.

The schedule: Tonight—Johnnie Long and his orchestra. Long's outfit is currently playing the New York Paramount after a long and successful stand at the Hotel New Yorker. Helen Young is the chief chirper in this collegiate aggregation.

Tuesday—Sammy Kaye. Kaye is back for a repeat date on the series.

Wednesday—Swanky Malneck. Currently at the swank Rainbow Room, the Malneck band has a highly individual style.

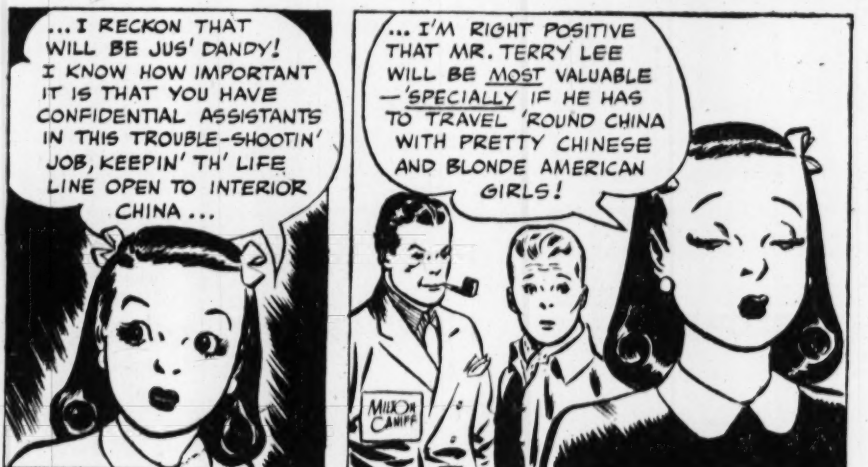

Thursday—Shep Fields. No longer bubbling with riling rhythms, the Fields band has shelved its brass section for a new style instrumentation highly touted along radio row.

Friday—Jimmy Dorsey's orchestra. One of the top tune titans of the country. His vocalists, Helen O'Connell and Bob Eberly, have a following all their own.

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES) The morning hours and until 1:15 p. m. favors important plans, dealings with people in authority, buying and selling. After 1:15 p. m. favors creative efforts along the lines of music, art, literature.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS) After 11:07 a. m. favors general financial contracting, suctions, dealings with women, but care should be observed around fire-arms and industrial works.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI) If you have someone special to court and want to interview to proceed smoothly, make your engagement before 1:08 p. m. Between 1:08 p. m. and 2:06 p. m. favors favor general business activity.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER) Before 4:01 p. m. favors dealings in affairs of a conservative nature and for real estate transactions. After 4:01 p. m. favors matters of a mechanical nature, dealings with the opposite sex.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO) Before 4:02 p. m. favors laying out plans, drawing up specifications and contracts and for all matters where a clear brain is needed. After 4:02 p. m. favors matters that have to do with adornment and artistic ideas.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO) During the morning hours and until 4:48 p. m. favors putting ideas into action, general business endeavors, conferences and diplomatic dealings. The remainder of the day and evening is likely to be filled with changeable moods and you may encounter those who are not decided in their opinions. This is not an especially auspicious time to make moves but to use discretion and moderation.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA) You may not find it easy to come to agreements previous to 4:09 p. m., so care should be given to travel, business, and daily living. After 4:09 p. m. favors private affairs, communications and things that have been hard to overcome.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO) Before 12:41 p. m. you may be filled with nervous energy, a desire to do things quickly, which can go into too much aggression. Keep a careful check on your impulses. After 12:41 p. m. favors general business activities and seeking favors.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS) The day should prove a most constructive period in every way, favoring financial interests, dealings with professional people, investments and works connected with large concerns.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN) Previous to 9:30 p. m. disappointments are likely to come to you by expecting too much, or by lack of preparation. After 9:30 p. m. is favorable period for deciding important matters that you have had under consideration at this time.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS) New beginnings today are likely to be very interesting, but not in the way that you would prefer, for you will have a tendency to meet disruption and inharmonious. The period does not especially favor signing papers and use caution in dealings with near relatives.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES) Previous to 9:48 a. m. appears to be the better part of the day when you should make every effort to get conditions set in motion for progress. Between 9:48 a. m. and 8:30 p. m. care should be used to hold poise and not take on new obligations.

Texas Aggies Are Near Southwest Title; 'Bama Rolls at Fast Clip.

By BILL BONI.
NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—(AP)—With only two "big" Saturdays still coming up, the 1941 football campaign finally has got to the point where sectional championships, with only one exception, either have been decided or just about clinched.
The lone exception is on the Pacific coast, where in one of yesterday's two smashing upsets (the other was Texas' 14-7 loss to Stanford), Stanford was beaten 14-13 by Washington State. Their T-formation tactics short-circuited for the second time this year on a wet field, the Indians were thrown back into a three-way tie for the lead with Washington and Oregon State—and State, because of earlier victories over Stanford and Washington, will have the inside track to the Rose Bowl if it can get by Montana and Oregon.

Three of the four surviving unbeaten and untied elevens set the pace for other major conferences. Minnesota, inspired to exceptional offensive drive by the return of Captain Bruce Smith, swamped the well-liked Iowa team 34-13 and now needs to beat only Wisconsin for its second straight Big Ten title and perfect season.

TEXAS LAST HURDLE.
Southwestern Conference honors virtually have been clinched again by Texas A. & M. The Aggies, largely on Leo Daniels' passes, whipped Rice 19-6 and have one more conference game, with Texas November 27. Much of the edge was taken off that battle by the Steers' defeat by T. C. U., which, coming on top of the tie with Baylor, completely deflated what earlier had been hailed as the finest team in southwest gridiron history.

A triumph for Texas over the Aggies in their meeting and wins for T. C. U. in its clashes with Rice and Southern Methodist would create a first-place deadlock between Texas A. & M. and the Horned Frogs.
Though T. C. U. scored the winning touchdown only eight seconds before the final gun on a pass by Emory Nix, there was nothing fluky about its victory. Its linemen held the touted Texas backs in check on all but one long-gainer, and the statistical edge was all to T. C. U.

Duke's unbeaten and untied Blue Devils need to beat only North Carolina State for a sure share in the Southern Conference crown. With Steve Lach delivering a brilliant performance and the team hitting so hard that North Carolina had to call time out for repairs on almost every other play, the Blue Devils blasted the Tar Heels 20-0. William and Mary, also with a perfect conference record, can tie Duke by winning its last two games.

DUKE'S GOOD.
Only other bigtime team with a perfect record is Duquesne, which takes rank as the east's best after finishing its regular schedule with a 16-0 defeat of Mississippi State. State, which had been unbeaten, made only one serious threat as the Dukes put on two stout touchdown marches and added a field goal.

Missouri, in the Big Six, and Utah, in the Rocky Mountain Big Seven, also just about clinched their conference titles. Missouri's T-formation clicked perfectly as the Tigers, with Red Wade leading the way, knocked off Oklahoma, 28 to 0. The Utes, tied twice but unbeaten, whipped Colorado State, 26 to 13.

Alabama, in the Southeastern loop, kept close to Mississippi State and Mississippi by turning back Georgia Tech, 20 to 0 on brilliant punt returns by Jimmy Nelson and Howard Hughes. Alabama must defeat Vanderbilt Saturday to stay in the running. The Mississippi eleven, either beaten inside the loop, collide November 29.

Front rank among the nation's "independents" must go to Notre

Texas' Bowl Dreams Fall in 25 Seconds

Baylor, T. C. U. Defeat Came Near Final Whistle; Longhorns Reached Peak Too Soon.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 16.—(AP)—A season of tragedy was jammed into 25 seconds for "the greatest football team in Southwest Conference history."
In that brief span air castles built over five painstaking weeks tumbled about the heads of the University of Texas Longhorns. With eight seconds to go Saturday, Emory Nix passed to Van Hall for a touchdown and Texas was beaten by Texas Christian.

With 17 seconds to go the Saturday before, Kit Kittrell passed to Bill Coleman for a touchdown and down-trodden Baylor tied mighty Texas.

Two weeks ago the Longhorns were ranked No. 1 in the nation. In games at Pasadena, Dallas or New Orleans were considered theirs for the asking.

"The precision-perfect team," "the mightiest team Texas ever had," "glorious fruits of a five-year plan" were appellations pinned on the great Orange Wave.

FALTERS IN STRETCH.
Then something happened. The Texas machine that blasted Colorado, Louisiana State, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Rice and Southern Methodist sputtered and faltered in the stretch.

What was wrong with the team? Veteran Coach Matt Bell, of Southern Methodist, labeled "the greatest Southwest Conference history—greater than my Rose Bowl team of 1935, greater than undefeated Texas Christian of 1938, greater than unbeaten A. & M. of 1939?"

Some had considered the Baylor tie the result of a natural lull in the season and because several key men were out with injuries.

But those men were in there against T. C. U. and the Baylor lesson should have insured no let-down against Texas Christian.

HAD EVERYTHING.
D. X. Bible came to Texas five years ago. He built from the ground up and last year had what was regarded as the best team in the conference at the finish. He was openly optimistic that the 1941 eleven had everything necessary to win.

What happened? One prominent view is that the team attained its peak too soon and that it had felt the S. M. U. game was the climax and that if it won that the rest would be easy.

Another view is that it went stale, that it was under too much pressure—Rose Bowl, "greatest in history" talk.

The players said "just couldn't get going." Bible said "We just didn't rise to the occasion."

Twenty-five seconds—25 bitter seconds that will live long in the memory of Texas football.

TURKEY SHOOT.
Dr. Dave Smith was the winner in the turkey shoot Sunday afternoon at the Capitol Gun Club with a score of 49X50. That is, he won the turkey for that particular day.

Other scores were as follows: Fred Vandirfuss 45X50. Dr. C. F. Barron 42. G. B. Holcomb 42. Bob Arthur 42.

There were only five entries in the shoot for the turkey. Jack Simpson had a score of 35. A. D. Snipes had 30. Dr. L. B. Rappard had 44. John Mullins 34, and John Hartley 38 in outside turkey competition.

New shooter scores were as follows: Sam Whitaker, 36. L. L. Shawler 34. Don Bower 28. Fred Dover 32. Morris Ewing 26, and A. A. Greene 29.

A turkey shoot is scheduled for next Saturday and Sunday and the winners for this week and also next week will have their prizes delivered to them at their homes prior to old Thanksgiving Day.

Didrikson Would Return To Amateurs
Famous Texas Girl Athlete Wants To Play for Fun Only.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—(INS)—Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, the famous Texas girl athlete, who has played golf in a professional way for several years, now wants to rejoin the amateurs, her husband, Wrestler George Zaharias, disclosed today.

Zaharias said Babe already had petitioned the United States Golf Association for the return of her "Simon-pure" standing and expected a decision when executive of the association hold their winter meeting.

Babe gained her first athletic fame in track and baseball, but when the exhibition possibilities of both sports were waning, she turned to "play for pay" golf and worked up to a ranking position in the game.

Now, says Zaharias, despite the fact that she plays consistently in the low 70's, Babe wants to do it for fun only.
